BULLDOGS

AM 97 CR

Ah, it's autumn, and there is a strong sense of school spirit and pride in the air. It is that time of year when we will all go out together and support our school with all we've got in hopes of bringing home a win. I think all of you know what time it is. H-O-M-E-C-O-M-I-N-G!!!! From high school to high school, this is one of the best times of the year, and Kenmore East was no different from the others. The sacred ritual of homecoming began with spirit week, which included Blue and Gold day, an all-school pep rally, and competitions which pitted class against class.

When Saturday finally rolled around, it seemed like everyone was ready for the parade of class floats and the football game. Passers-by to the game could only see one thing... people! It seemed as if the entire school, and then some, showed up to support our team and cheer the players on to victory.

The game was by far one of the best efforts given by the team in a lackluster season. Until the final second of the game, the Bulldogs stayed in the running,

vs. RED DEVILS

losing by just one point. Despite the score, everyone was upbeat. With the game out of the way, it was time to party until we dropped at the homecoming dance that night.

Everywhere one looked that night, there were the enthusiastic faces of new freshmen and seniors alike. At the dance, grades and ages could not be distinguished. For that one night everyone was equal, sharing the common bond of school spirit. As the night came to a close, the group divided, with many going to parties, out for a late-night snack, or just home, exhausted from the energy-filled day of Homecoming '96.

Friends Forever

The time has come when we will make the big step in our lives, but Norm and I will remain close friends. I can remember that outgoing, loving boy since I was three years old. We have seen each other blossom and mature during our school days. Friendship is something I cherish and hold close to my heart. I hope Norm's and my friendship will continue for many years to come. From Santa's lap to the junior prom. I love you Normie!!

By Jen Blasiak

Friends Don't Always Last

Tammy Boyle and Laina Gamble have been friends for many years. Still today you can see them walking and talking in the hallway. It's good to see that a friendship can be kept that long. For me, my choice and clique of friends have changed much throughout the years. That's not to say that the people that I used to hang around with are bad people, and to say that I don't miss them would be a lie. People change and the way they look and think change. We all are still young and have so many more friends to make.

A Time For Many Lasts

For many of us in the Class of '96, our senior year is a time of many lasts. It is our last first day of high school, our last homecoming, and our last Snowball. Especially hard for me was my very last track meet. I have grown so attached to my daily routine, it is very scary to think of it ending and having to start something new.

However, soon our lives will be filled with many new firsts. For many of us, it will be our first time living away from home. It will be our first time, in four years, to experience new people and new friendships. We will be free to make our own decisions and our own rules. Our lives are just beginning, and there are many opportunities laid out before us. The Class of '96 is truly an exceptional class, full of many diverse talents. We have a bright future ahead of us, and Kenmore East has started us on the right path. I will forever cherish the friendships and memories I have made here. They have prepared me to face bravely all the firsts I have ahead of me. For now, however, my advice is to enjoy all our "lasts" and make them the best! I congratulate the Class of '96 on all we have accomplished and wish you all the best of luck in the future.

Balance

I was assigned to write an article on a day in the life of Andrew Koszuta. I'm still not exactly sure why people find my life to be so interesting, but I'm not complaining about finally getting a chance to leave my mark on the school. It's a goal I've always been driven towards but never thought I'd actually get the chance to live out. I tend to be long winded and complex when I write, especially about myself, but I'll try and keep this shorter than a novel.

The only part of my life worth talking about is the one in my head. No, I'm not crazy, I just think a great deal. Too much sometimes. I try to comprehend why people are how they are. Just what is right and acceptable and what is wrong. The rules of life and the standards that measure degrees of good and evil change from society to society. Even within a society those standards can change depending on the environment in which an individual is brought up living in.

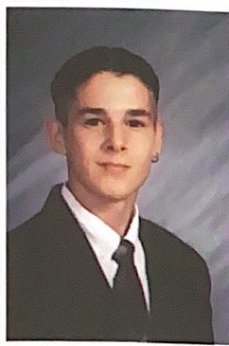

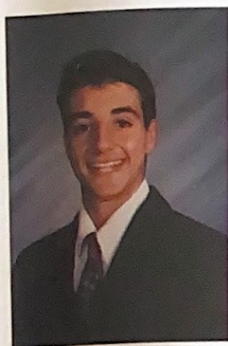

You must understand that in order to have good you must have evil and vice versa. One cannot exist without the other. Even in the purest things there can be found some ugliness. In the face of filth there lies a beauty that can only be uncovered by those with an open mind. It is all too often overlooked by the ignorant, but it exists, in a way that is much stronger than most people care to admit.

My life is a never-ending quest for balance. Determining what the two opposing sides are is the primary obstacle. I search through each society as well as its subcultures for what truly is the dark side and what is the light side and then finding a neutral ground. I'm still not even sure if such a thing exists.

Senio th Be

Senior year should be taken seriously. Senior year should be a time to get ready for the rest of your life. Right? Well, try to tell that to all of the Seniors on these next two pages. As you can see, these Seniors are not taking anything too seriously. The Dog House, and other senior gatherings are places where something memorable always happens. On these two pages we tried to capture Seniors at their best. Or is it Seniors at their worst?

Taking The PSAT

Early Saturday morning, on October 21 in 1995, many of the Juniors planing to go to college took the PSAT, or pre-scholastic achievement test. Juniors were encouraged to participate in the examination, and there was a great deal of preparation involved. The students had to sign up and pay an application fee. Each student took a different approach to getting ready for it. Some did not give a great deal of concern to the PSAT, or did not bother to study because they felt it was of no use. Others took the exam very seriously, and tried their best to receive a good score. Either way, the much anticipated day had finally arrived. The PSAT turned out to be relatively difficult, and you could almost feel the concentration in those testing rooms. The entire exam was approximately 100 questions, which was fairly short, and perhaps not all it was cracked up to be. But in any case, the PSAT was a good preparation for the SAT, which the college-bound Juniors will take their Senior year.

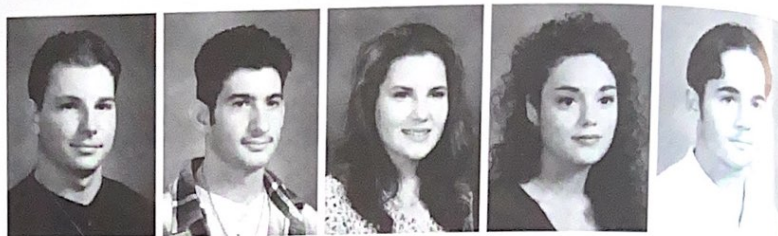

-Paul Nicotera

This is the practice PSAT that all of the participants recieved prior to taking the real test.

Feelings About Pep Rallies

Pep rallies are a time for the students of the school to show their support for our football team. For some people, it is a very exciting time. The cheerleaders get everyone's spirits up with their routines. Then there are different relay competitions between the different classes. These usually provide amusement for the rest of the students. The music, the cheers, the events, and the general atmosphere really get some people in a very cheery mood.

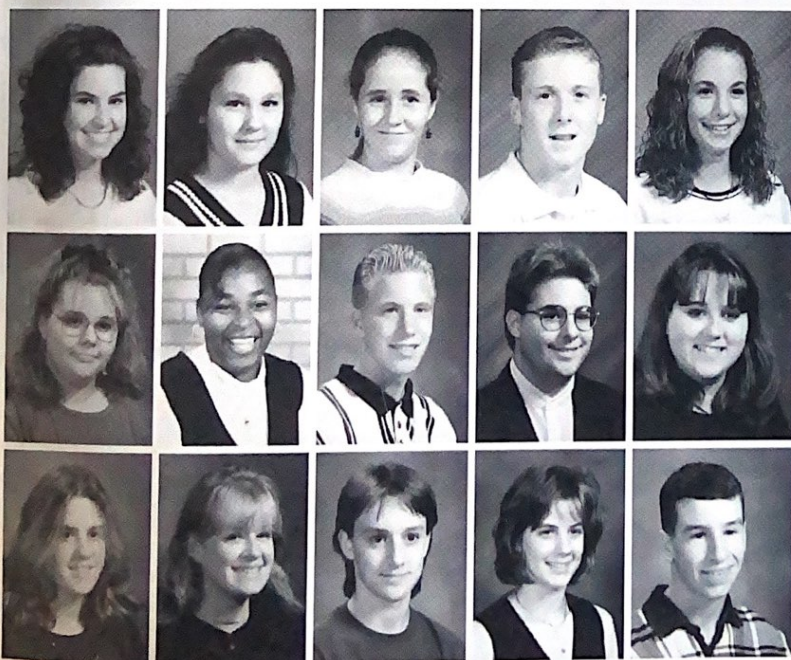

For others it is a different story. These people feel that the only good thing about the rallies is that they get out of class for an hour.

They don't think it is cool to enjoy and take part in the rallies. They believe it is childish and beneath them. Being Juniors and already having attended three, they already know what is coming and aren't excited anymore. Perhaps if Metallica were there they would like it a little more.

Well, whether you are a fan of the pep rallies or not, you can't help but feel a little bit more in a good mood after attending one.

- Robert Richardson

The Junior Class attends its fourth pep rally. Many seem to be bored, but some are a bit more enthusiastic.

Being a Junior

When I think about being a Junior, mixed feelings come to mind. I'm excited that I'm finally an upper-classman, that I only have one year left of high school and freedom awaits me after that last year. However, it's scary to think that in a little less than one year, I'll be in college. It's exciting to think that I'll be on my own but it is also scary. I have to figure out what I want to be (whatever that means). Tuition for college is scary too. The thing that comforts me most is when I think that everyone else has a job, and most went to college. If they can survive, so can I.

Three Years, and Counting

After two years of being in this school things have gotten pretty monotonous. It's always the same pep rallies, the same Pepsi assembly, and the same teacher stereotypes. I guess that you just get used to this school. It kind of grows on you like the new flavor of Doritos. When I leave this place I think it will feel strangely odd, in a paradoxical sort of way. To put it metaphorically, it will be like the loss of the brown M&M's and the coming of the blue ones. Well, I think. This yearbook has absolutely no affiliation with Pepsi, Doritos, or M&M Mars Co.

Finally a Sophomore

As sophomores, we are finally off the "bottom rung" of our high school career. We can scare the freshmen with horror stories about their teachers and supply them with insight about how their freshmen year will be. It's our chance to still have fun and not worry about the pressures of PSATs, SATs, scholarship applications, and college acceptance that upperclassmen have. So be young and enjoy it while you still can! You won't be a sophomore forever!

A Step Ahead, Yet Two Behind

Sophomore year. Seeing old faces and meeting new ones as they join the same groups, teams and activities. Old enough to set examples for some, but also young enough to learn from examples that are set for you. Walking with your head held high because you're no longer the "little guy". Growing more mature but also not being mature enough for others. Making that special team that you strived to make, and always wanting to be better. Making new friends and leaving some old ones behind. All of these factors are part of a high school student's life. In some ways they are "a step ahead, but still two behind."

Class of '99

Welcome to Chaos

When asked the question, how does it feel to be a freshman, I immediately answered, "I don't know." But now that I've given it some thought, being a freshman has been hard work. Of course it's fun, but there were so many more choices to make. What clubs to join, what classes to take, what friends to meet. My head was spinning. The first few weeks were really confusing; I was always getting lost, I dragged my locker around in my bookbag, and I was having trouble catching my bus. After a while, though, I got used to the chaos. Now, high school is a lot more exciting. Its hectic schedule has become almost normal. I've gotten used to it, so that I can get to my locker without missing my bus. All in all being a freshman is really neat.

A New World

I walked aimlessly into Kenmore East, wondering what is going to happen over the next four years. The size of the school and everything inside, seemed twice the size of Middle School. I saw so many unfamiliar faces, and I wondered what they are like. Being around my friends has made being a freshman at Kenmore East a lot easier.

Hectic

The worst part of being a freshman was the first week or two of school. I got lost at least five times a day and broke my shoulders by carrying around a bag that looked and felt like I had a body stuffed in there. Then I had to deal with different teachers, homework, and all of that stuff. If that wasn't enough, I could try to join a club. Just listening to the announcements to find out about meetings was practically impossible. After a few weeks though, I got used to it all.

Looking to the Future

I've been asked by the yearbook staff to share my thoughts about our school as well as to share some possible directions for our future. First and foremost, Kenmore East is about people. In the past several years, we have created a learning community where collaboration, cooperation and support are behaviors that drive our decision making and programs. Many teachers, students, support staff members, administrators, parents and community members have contributed their time and energy to do whatever was necessary to make Kenmore East a better school. These efforts have paid off handsomely as we have been recognized as one of the most outstanding schools in the country.

Kenmore East is also about excellence in academics, athletics, extracurricular activities, service activities and social events. I am impressed each and every day with the determination, persistence and courage that I see demonstrated in classrooms, athletic contests, musical and theatrical performances, student publications and/or community service activities.

Opportunities is another word that comes to mind when describing Kenmore East. Our learning environment has been enhanced by addition of more computer technology, the Learning Center, new teachers and support staff members, 90 minute classes, learning teams, internships and more innovative ways of providing instruction in our classes. Your needs have been foremost in our thinking as we have prepared you for the many challenges of our rapidly changing society.

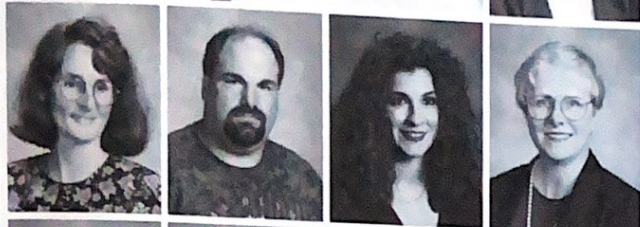

To quote Stephen Covey, "The best way to predict our future is to create it." Together, we have formulated a vision for the future that extends to all of the students and families in our community. We encourage you to take what you have learned and do whatever is necessary to make our world a better place to live for us all.

Dear, Seniors Class of 1996,

On behalf of Mr. Cerone and myself, we would like to extend a heart-felt "CONGRATULATIONS" to each and every one of you!

It's been a great four years watching you grow from awkward, disorganized Freshmen into mature, responsible men and women. We hope you will be able to look back at your years here at Kenmore East with lots of warm memories and laughter.

You are the true dreamers, the leaders of tomorrow- don't let anything stop you from making your dreams come true!

Sincerely,
Mr. Bailey & Mr. Cerone

P.S. Special thanks goes to Connie Smith for all her time and efforts.

Just Like A Pro

Do you recall the feeling you had before you were old enough to drive a car? "Why do I have to wait until I am sixteen? It is so easy--I could drive one right now." Then do you remember what it was like when you first tried to drive a car? The "only two pedals and wheel" became suddenly complex. And thirty miles per hour seemed remarkably fast. But, before you knew it, you were driving "just like a pro."

Your impression of driving a car changed once you drove one; you experienced both before and after impressions of doing something. I am in a similar situation as a first year teacher from a student's point of view. During high school, I never thought about how much time went into the dynamic lessons my teachers prepared. The day after I took a test or submitted a paper, I eagerly awaited the results. I never understood why it took "so long" for teachers to evaluate things. But these were some of my impressions before I became a teacher.

As a new teacher, my impressions have changed. I am no longer a recipient of a lesson; I am the creator. But developing a lesson involves so much more than just writing up a lesson plan. Agonizing hours not only go into deciding what to teach, but also into how to teach effectively. And those "why did it take so long" papers are also now seen in a new light. Thoughtful assessment takes time.

In addition to my changing views on classes and teaching, my impression of students has also changed. I never realized how easily students can become part of a teacher's life. This past year, I have learned so much about and from my students. They have a special way of making my day without even knowing it. Whenever a struggling student comes for after school help, or the joyous one shares good news, my day is "made." These students show me they understand that teachers are there for them. And we are.

Unlike driving, I do not think I will ever teach "like a pro." Instead, I will continue to learn from my colleagues and from my students. For these two resources are invaluable.

After 75 years of honoring students who show character, scholarship, and service to the community, National Honor Society is one of the most recognizable and trusted student organizations in the United States. Kenmore East's chapter of NHS is no exception. This year's NHS is the largest in K.E.S. history. We organized a canned food drive which brought in more than 1,300 food items for the needy. Also, NHS had its famous "Intergenerational Dance," which was as successful as ever.

Boy's Gymnastics

Wouldn't you like to have a perfect body? A body built by guts, gravity and glory and not steroids?

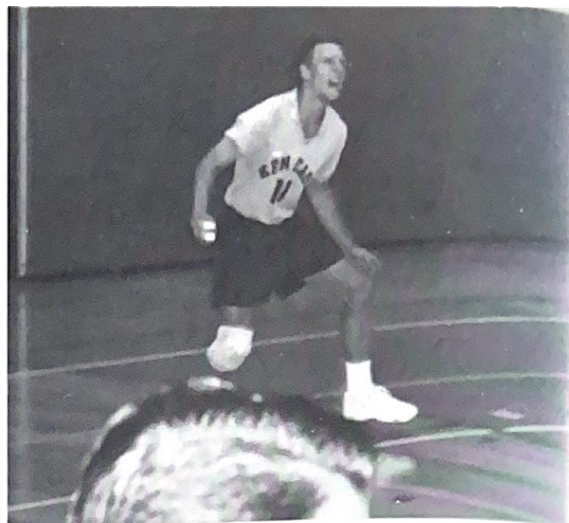

The Kenmore East/West Men's Gymnastics team isn't the most powerful team, but is working to take the section VI title.

The team has a combined total of four guys. Coached by Dan Piatek, captain Dave Ryan became a superb vaulter and parallel bars expert. Adam Johnson, a veteran of four years to the team, is number one in the section VI on the pommel horse. Rookie Charlie Alloy of Hoover Middle is practicing hard on the rings and floor. Charlie had an unfortunate incident where he landed on his head and ended up in the hospital. It knocked some sense into him and he was scoring two points higher. Kyle Parson of Franklin Middle was a rookie to the team as he competed on the floor at sectionals and received his varsity letter.

We Are the Champions

(of the League)

This fall, the Kenmore East girls swimming team had its most successful season. On Halloween, the team defeated Lockport for the second time, becoming the NFL Champions.

The intensity built while the parents fought in the stands and harsh words passed between the teams. The poor sportsmanship was a result of the challenge the teams met by facing each other for the second time. Topping it all off was the drive-by egging suffered by the Kenmore East bus on the ride home.

On November 1st, The Lockport, N.Y., Union-Sun & Journal published an article containing demeaning comments directed toward the Kenmore East team and the officials who ran the meet, following the disqualification of two of Lockport's winning relay squads. The Lockport coach is quoted as saying, "The only three times our team has had a false start, the same official has called all three. Without the nine-point swing, we're league champs. The girls deserved better for their hard work."

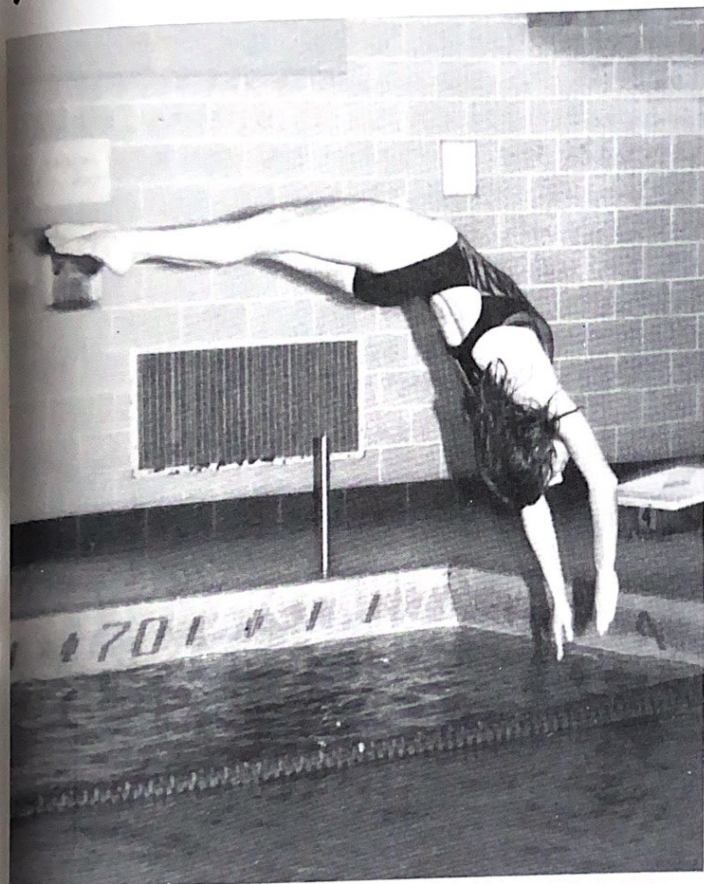

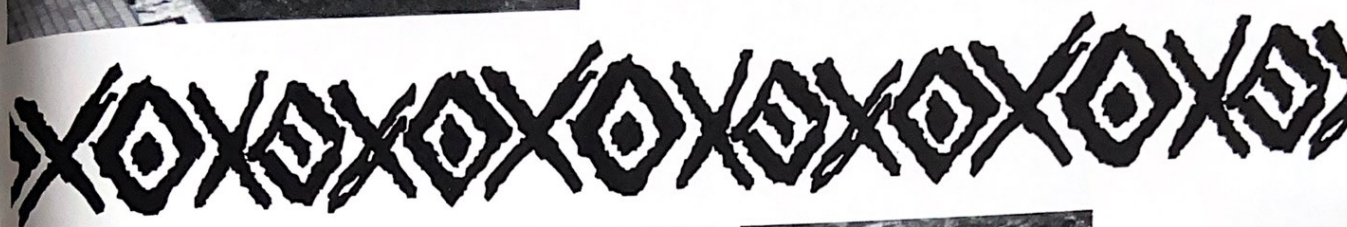

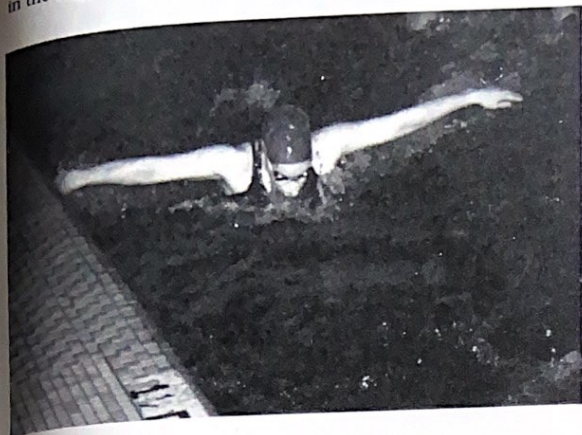

I know that we have worked so hard that we deserved to win. I think that Lockport just wasn't prepared to deal with the end of their domination of girls swimming.

Mr. Cranston and John Vogt observe the acting abilities of the characters of "Lost in Yonkers."

Eddie (Don Rider) tries to calm his sister Bella (Lisa Terrana) after a fight with her mother.

This year's all-school play, Lost In Yonkers was a huge success. The award winning production, written by Neil Simon, was unique because the cast was smaller than a normal play produced by Kenmore East's Theatre Arts Society. With a cast of only seven people, the acting talents of all the performers greatly shined through in their characters. Veteran actors Don Rider, Lisa Terrana, Dave Kachermeyer, Amy Donahue and Ian Mack were joined by Theresa Asarese and freshman Dave Hanson. All the time taken in rehearsal was worth it though. The play was on stage for two excellent performances.

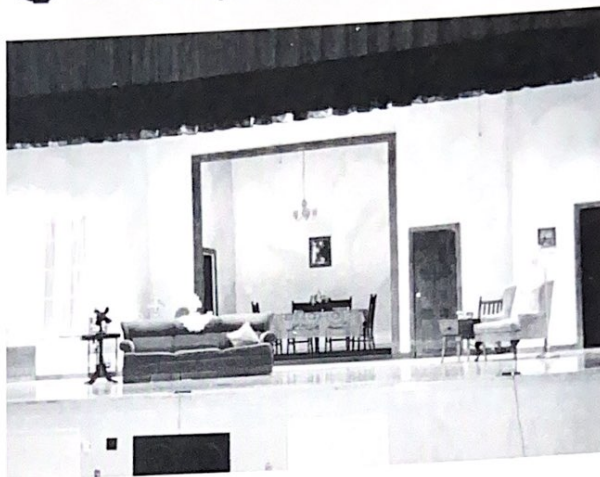

The stage crew headed by Mr. Koprevich did an excellent job preparing the sets along with help from scenic artist and art teacher Ms. Jager. (Continued on the next page)

The production staff spent many long hours working diligently towards perfection. Often cast and crew didn't leave until late hours as they worked to make the play a show none would want to miss.

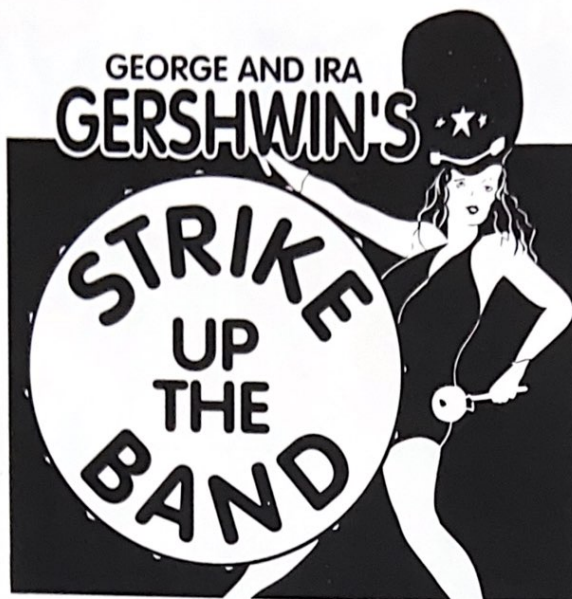

With the combined talents of the cast and crew and the incredible directing abilities of Mr. Cranston and student director Nancy Hammel, the play was not to be forgotten. As the play came to an end on the final night, the cheering from the audience and cast was overwhelming. The thrill in the voices of all those involved could be heard resounding through the halls.

Anne (Lisa Terrana) and Timothy (Bob Rozak) dance their way across the stage singing a love song to each other.

The Cast, Orchestra Pit, Stage and Tech Crew of Strike Up the Band.

Penny Analakias assists some people to their seats before the show starts.

Spelvin (Dave Kachemeyer) drops his drawers and shows off his patriotic boxers to Mrs. Draper and her daughter.

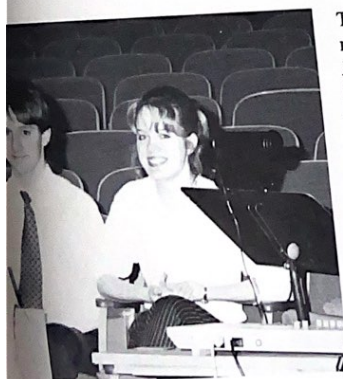

Swiss girl Larissa West entertains soldier Rich Kraemer while he is on duty in Switzerland.

Friend (Carlo Luberti) and Joan Fletcher (Jen Blasiak) show their true feelings for one another.

The people of Hurray cheer for and support the U.S.A. in their "Patriotic Rally."

Dave Jordan and Jessie Mostipak sit at the controls for the auditorium and stage lighting system.

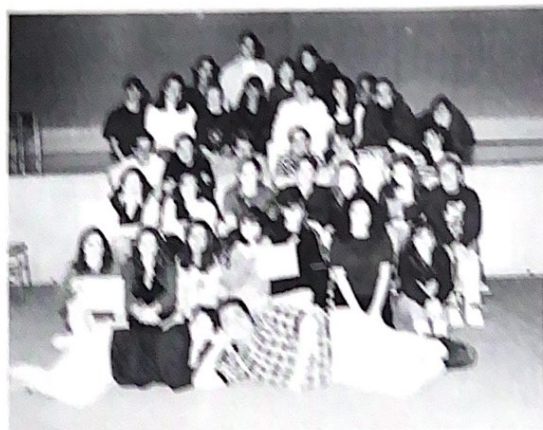

This year, Kenmore East once again performed another ground-breaking musical, with a cast and crew of about 130 people. Although Strike Up the Band was created by George and Ira Gershwin in 1927, its humor is still fresh and witty. The story centers around Horace Fletcher, proud owner of the Fletcher American Cheese Company. He is furious when Switzerland protests a tariff on imported cheese. In fact, Horace convinces the American government to declare war on Switzerland! Horace J. Fletcher was played by senior Trenton Wolford, while other leading characters were portrayed by Jennifer Blasiak, Carlo Luberti, Nancy Hammel, Lisa Terrana, Bob Rozak, Don Rider, and Dave Kachemeyer. As the curtain closed on the Saturday night performance, Strike up the Band became a fond memory. The annual hallway frenzy afterwards included teary-eyed seniors, congratulating parents, and "good job" hugs all around. It's hard to believe that so many people get so close in just two short months of rehearsals but friendship is truly a key part of the ongoing success of KE musicals.

What do you call 46 of Kenmore East's top singers coming together in song? Company of Song, directed by Tom Doyle!

This year's theme was "Broadway Revivals," with hits from "Grease," "Peter Pan," and "Guys and Dolls." In addition, the group headed for Toronto for its annual concert tour.

The group also appeared at the Festival of Trees and the Festival of Lights. Company sang for several nursing homes, schools, and private functions throughout the area.

Even though all the concerts keep us busy, the year-end revue is what we all look forward to. After months of rehearsing, Company performed a full-length show with non-stop action. Due to amazing success in past years, the show was extended to two nights this year.

A lot of hard work and love for music goes into each year. Also, many life-long friends are made. As the song goes, "they're good and crazy people, my friends, they're good and crazy people, my very best friends. That's what it's all about, isn't it?"

John Clay and Dan Dugan take a break from their reading assignment to show off their pearly whites.

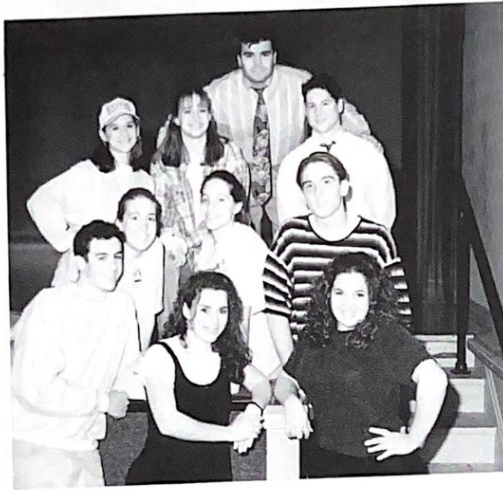

S.H.A.R.E. Club (Special Handicapped Assistance with Peer Relationships in Education) is a group of students who choose to spend time with some very special Kenmore East students. Under the leadership of Mrs. Currier, S.H.A.R.E. Club provides a coat check at every dance, as well as a babysitting service at craft shows. We have parties and also go to a Bison's game every year. When joining S.H.A.R.E. club, you learn about independent studies, where you can work with the students in their classrooms. S.H.A.R.E. club has also formed a "Committee for Disability Awareness". This committee went to freshmen social studies classes to talk about various disabilities. We created activities that demonstrated what it is like to have various disabilities. Being in S.H.A.R.E. club had taught me to have patience with those who are different from me. It has also taught me that "Everybody's special, nobody's perfect."

CONGRATLUATIONS IAN

FROM PRE-K TO 12TH GRADE
YOU HAVE GIVEN US SO MUCH TO BE PROUD OF;
YOUR HOCKEY, GOLF, BASEBALL, COMPANY OF SONG, MUSICALS, THE PLAY
"LOST IN YONKERS"
(UNCLE LOUIE) AND ALL
YOUR OTHER ENDEAVORS.
GOOD LUCK AT R.I.T. AND IN ALL THAT YOU DO
LOVE MOM, DAD,
AND AUDREY

Theresa Joy,
You are unique...stay that way.
Follow your heart, realize your dreams, let God guide you.
We love you always,
Mom and Dad

Acey, Tido, Twish
I Love You Bird. Tree and Sue forever. I'll never forget you.

May all your wishes
come true
And if they don't you'll talk your way through it
Love
Mom

The Yearbook Staff would like to thank Ms. Patterson and Ms.
Peszko for the Saturday morning donuts (And for taking the job no one else wanted).

Reflecting on the year 199

Slunky Wars

- Keysh's Mental Lapse
- Vinnie's Runaway Pillowfly™
- “Sorry, is my shopping cart double parked?”
- “Jeff, can you spell count?”
- Rubberband Atomic Warhead 502+
- Marley's cup o' surprises
- “Eeew! There's white stuff forming on my thing!” (official #8)
- Cross-Country Cross Dressers (J. Edgar Hoover #8)
- Rubberbando Commando Artillery Range (Norman Schwartzkopf #8)
- Mickey the Mouse's Marauding Mayhem (Walt Disney #8)
- Jeff's multi-species cup (Lassie #8)
- I am a chicken leg, hear me roar! (Colonel Sanders #8)
- Big Pete with the hairy chest & the little floor (Nickelodeon #8)
- Formula 409 + yearbook stench = ... (Love Canal #8)
- The possessed computer that ate the Soph disk [twice] (Microsoft #8)
- The flag rose at Iwo Jima... (Woodrow #8)
- Jill's good/accidental aim
- Vinnie's good/accidental aim
- Al's air pocket
- Mickey the Mouse's Marauding blah blah blah (yes, again)
- CAUTION: FOOT
- “Where's the kicker?”
- “Gone - I can't find it.”
- yearbook soap opera take 2
- “Where have you taken Vinnie?”
- Jumping in the garbage can
- Wow! It's never been this big!
- Jill's yummy cup o' surprises

Special Thanks to:

Ms. Patterson & Mrs. Peszko - without them, we would've been committed a long time ago
Ms. Kolb - no one knows spellings like her Gino's - self-explanatory
The custodial staff - they have the keys & the dog on a stick (don't ask)
Frank Schiavonne - our yearbook rep
Tops - great donuts
Jason Drexinger - stress relief
The nice ladies in the computer lab
Everyone who helped make this a success,
And, especially, all the editors who sacrificed their Saturdays to get this out on time

Self Portrait To: A Friend

You're looking into a dirty mirror,
Tainted with smudges from the past.
Foggy from the petty concern of what others think.
Dusted with the things you bought yourself to make you feel better; which all of them never did Cracked with your self-hate,
You can't see yourself in this mirror,
Until you understand that to be loved you must love,
and to love you must love yourself...
until you understand
nothing will wipe it clean, so don't look away any longer
at your friends,
who will stand behind
forever
with rags and windex in hand.

-Kristy McElhinny, Gr. 11

-Edward Chilungu, Gr. 9

I am destined to be alone.
I sit
and I ponder,
I wonder,
I hope,
that I too will give and receive the forgotten and missing
love
of my dreams,
coated sweetly in kisses,
wrapped warmly in hugs,
but always escaping,
somehow indifferent.
I remain
as I am destined-- forgotten, overlooked alone.

Rose

Sweetly fragrant and potently meaningful glowing in the candle light.
The baby's breath like stars order its reaching bloom
as if it were the center of the universe or is it the center of my heart?
It penetrates its way inside.
It is the sun lighting up its world

A rose received and given with love lives on.
It has a special place in life's garden and it ever blooms in the soil of the beautiful emotion
it represents.

A single red rose,
Glistening with silvery dew drops
In the light of the moon.
Each single drop,
Like stars in the sky
twinkling brightly.

A single red rose,
blooming at night
breathing, glowing experiencing life.
Slowly opening,
Making itself more vulnerable to pain
But always trusting in the moon.

A single red rose,
In a cold winter frost
As sudden as a shot from a gun.
Vulnerable, cold, no warm summer sun,
It begins to wilt
And dies alone

-Emily Schultz Gr. 10

A broken heart, a wounded soul, no one near for me to hold.
Standing by myself with tears in my eyes. Recalling a time when I could call his love mine. Now thinking about the love we had shared or the memories that were made. I cannot believe what was said. I never thought one fight could end our love so completely.

He forgot so quickly about the promises made. Eternally together he said, but now he is with another. Whatever happened to Forever?

Little Blade of Grass

No one tells the blade of grass, as the October days march on,
"you'll soon turn brown,
and return to the ground which you came from."

No one tells the blade of grass as November days pass by
"you'll soon be nothing
but an iceberg underneath a wintry sky."

No one tells the blade of grass as the first flakes begin to fall
"there soon will be twenty feet of snow,
and you'll be underneath it all."

No one tells this to the blade of grass because he already knows that spring will come eventually and melt the snow.

No one tells the blade of grass
not to lie down and die
because he has hope,
he knows things will get better.
That is why.

Hurt

The feelings that I had for you, have been replaced.
I woke up to see what you really are
What I never thought you'd be.
There's a pain deep inside of me,
a hurt you'll never know.
I vow to never let you see.

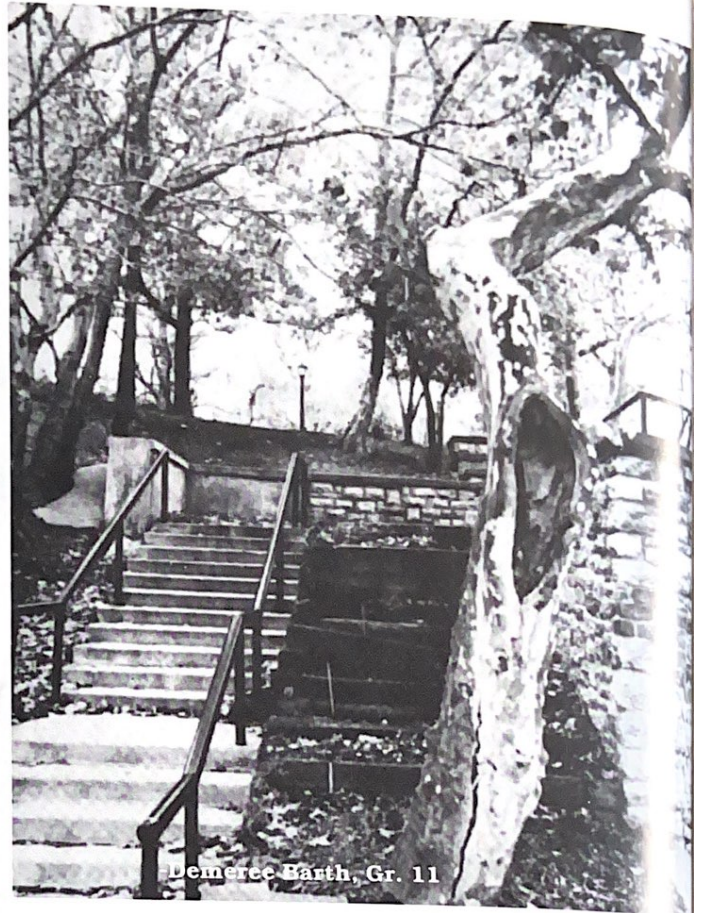

Even though you hurt me
with your obstinate ways.
My heart still reaches out for you.
Wishing everything would end up the way it used to be.

I know that you thought of me as a child,
when you tried to put me down.
But I know I can be what I wanted to be;
with or without you around.

I wanted to let you know, that I got through this situation just fine.
I did it all my own.
I am the one who has grown.

I know you were just trying to protect yourself.
Protecting yourself from the unknown.
And for that I do forgive you,
and I'm trying to forget you.
I'm hoping that it's soon.
I don't want a lifetime of hurt.
Just because of you.

-April McMaster, Gr. 11

The Hope In Me has Died

I can't face the future
When I can't forget my past
I've been cheated
My life is one big lie
When I'm alone in the night
I swear I want to die.

My family doesn't help me
They only bring me pain
The longer I am with them
The less I have to gain
I look around for answers
But none of them I find
When it comes to finding my way
I feel like I am blind

Once again I look for my escape deep in the night
And since I cannot find it, my life sees no more light
Now that I'm alone I bow my head and hide
But nothing seems to help me
The hope in me has died

-Jennifer Kavanagh, Gr. 11

-Peter Jeffries, Gr. 11

Flood

If one day the continents flood,
And the mortals drown in the global pool,
Centuries from then will they adapt-or is evolution the theory of fools?

If Jesus returns to banish the damned, will the scientists be the first to disappear?
Or is free thought a divine right,
Despite its bringing global fear?

If evolution and religious ways-
Are in fact not polarized, Should pre-flooded mortals bicker on-
Or should they stop, think, and realize.

That the gap between science and heart-
Is smaller than one might say.
Before the Almighty God created the Sun,
How did He depict the length of a day?

-Dan Kolb, Gr. 11

Silence

Children screaming in the night.
People being murdered left and right.
The streets are filled with so much violence.
One of these days life on earth will just fade away.
And leave the Earth completely silent.

-Sue Caplick, Gr. 10

Crying in the night,
Bleeding in the rain,
No matter where I roam
It's forever the same
A twist of fate,
That we always play this game
A challenge of love
And a Heart melting in the Rain...

-Dana Wedgewood, Gr. 10

Hollow,
empty sadness,
wandering through time's narrow passageway
heading nowhere, for nothing, no reason.
There no way in,
no way out,
no way to escape and run away and hide from all of my fears and troubles.
No way for things to end,
or begin,
or continue,
or restart.
Left alone with no one here.
Abandoned with no one here.
and see things for myself,
and feel things for myself,
Creating my own hopes, dreams,
realities and regulations.
No barriers, no one repressing me.
There's no one to hold

-Lori Baker, Gr. 10

Losing My Brain

One moment I'm here
The next I'm gone
Five seconds later this poem moves on

Over and over Again and again
I'm getting so tired
I'm losing my brain

Writing and writing, more and more
I try to stop, but I can no more I'm losing my patience, I'm testing my will All I need is some space to fill

I look through my files, I search in pain
There's no longer anything inside my brain
I wander and wander, and search and search and realize my brain just no longer works.

-Gary Gagliardi, Gr. 12

-Andrew Koszuta Gr. 12

Mission: Retrieve Cafeteria Lunch

I've been given my assignment; to successfully retrieve my cafeteria lunch by 1127 hours. This kind of mission separates the women from the girls. Some fight this battle, some lose, some win, some bring paper bag lunches. My goal is to complete my assignment in the most expedient manner with as little civilian bloodshed as possible. I make no promises.

How to identify target: look for double-decker sandwich of the day with government meat of unknown species. Be able to recognize congealing of cheese and aorta-blocking greasy bun.

Enemies: every civilian within perimeter of "lunch line," as it's called here. Beware of civilians who glance about, shuffle their feet and then make their hostile maneuver in front of you. Take any measures necessary to regain your position. Use class rank, flirting, or the suggestion of lost appendages. Books may be used to inflict temporary, superficial wounds if all else fails.

How to handle the neutrals, also known as "lunch ladies": Identifiable by hair nets, sour expressions and a look of horror fixed on their faces. Just keep in mind they've handled the government meat and may become violent and irrational. State order in clear, polite voice, avoiding direct eye contact. Any swift movement may provoke the neutrals.

I am ready for my mission. I have my materials which consists of $1.50 in local currency and lots of guts. I now begin.

1120 hours

The atmosphere of this area is serene, yet noisy as the civilians speak in their own dialect which includes many epithets and lots of sentences beginning with the word "like." Everything is calm as I head for the guerilla site, the familiar lunch line. The two quarters dig into my flesh and the perspiration from my palm dampens the paper currency. I am in line. God stay with me in time of need.

1122 hours

The line crawls forward as I press my body against the civilian in front of me, using the military strategy aptly named, "Push-as-close-as-you-can-to-the-peon-in-front-of-you-so-no-other-can-pass." I know these strategies are difficult to understand in their complexity, except for veterans such as myself.

1123 hours

Near disaster was averted. I saw the gleam in the eyes of a guerrilla as he approached to make his hostile move. I sized up my opponent and decided to use class rank in my defense. It worked. The enemy now stands in back of me, wishing he had not failed fifth grade so long ago. The smell of fries fills the air. I sniff, noting they are not thoroughly cooked. I saw the green Jell-o glisten and sway in front of me as I approached the neutral.

1124 hours

I have stated my need for the rubber meat sandwich and have entered the dessert area. The Jell-O taunts me, swaying in rhythm to the words that reverberate through my head. "You will fail." But I will not. I see the machine which accepts the money, the "cash register," in guerrilla slang. The neutrals appear to be stable, the hair nets mat their angled locks of hair to their head. Anything could happen now. I wait.

125 hours

I have handed over the civilian currency to the woman who had cut the Jell-O into little squares. How do I know was her? One of her hairs is encased in my Jello block. I feel the vomit rise in my throat. She had no chance of getting away with her deception. Jell-O reveals all.

127 hours

I silently thank God for the completion of my mission. I have the sandwich and I have shed little blood. I have the Jell-O block with the neutral's hair to be sent for DNA analysis to reveal what she really is. I feel a sense of elation. My mission is completed, danger is once again at bay.

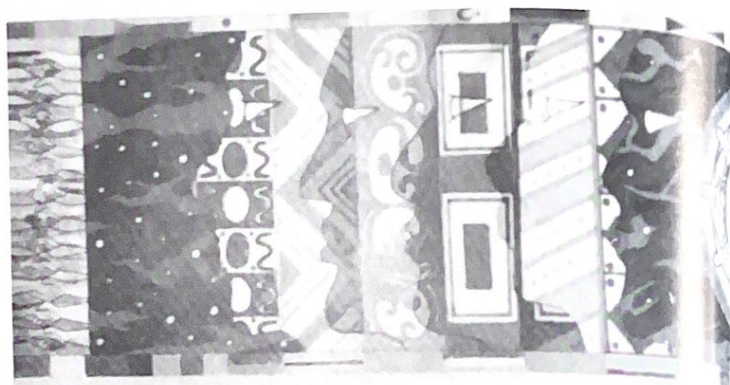

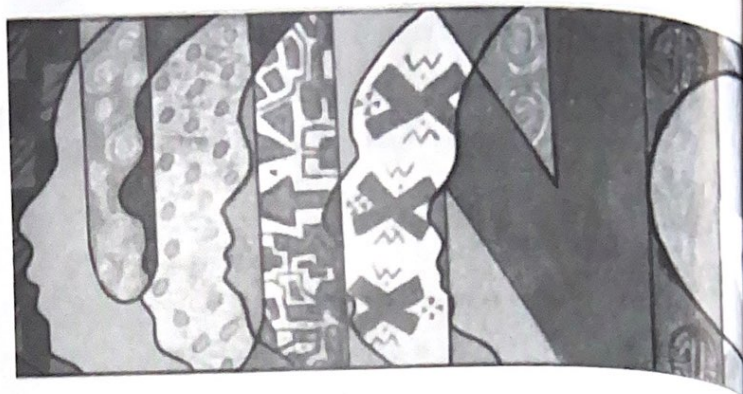

Dialogue

I lay dying under the washing basin, which occasionally drips water on my fevered head. It was the sandwich. I lay my guard down and they have gotten to me. I should have realized the meat was filled with poison when it crunched in my mouth. I had chewed. The security guard has been sent for, I will be taken prisoner if I am alive when I reach the concentration camp, known among the guerillas as "detention." My last human contact was as a civilian in search for hair lacquer while going through my pockets. I am sorry, dear country, that I have failed.

CONGRATULATIONS!

AND BEST WISHES TO THE CLASS OF 1996 FROM THE MEMBERS OF THE BRIGHTON
VOLUNTEER FIRE CO. AND THEIR FAMILIES

Melissa,

When you were first born, our initial concern was if you were healthy and our fondest thought was that indeed you were our blessing from high school. Obviously, much has "come to pass" in these years since your birth. The one thing however that has remained constant is the love we have for you. Your graduation from high school will serve as another chapter to the fond memories you have provided us. Once again congratulations and remember we will always be there for you.

Love,
Mom, Dad & Jill

Darcy,

Congratulations!
We're very proud of you.
Love, Mom and Dad

Uma-You are the most special blessing of my life. I hope you are always happy and fulfilled in everything you undertake. I love the person you have become and the person yet to be. You always make me proud.
M.H. Oprah!

Kara,

You are one of God's treasures, and we love you beyond measure.

Mom & Dad

Steve, you've contributed to your class and to our lives. We're proud of you and wish you the best in all you do.

Love, Mom, Dad, & Karen

Delma you have been a very brave and courageous girl. You made it. It hasn't been easy and that is why we are so proud of you. We love you and wish you the very best,
Mom, Dad, and Miguelito

From Pre-K to Graduation...who'd have thought our "baby" would have grown up so fast!!!

Congratulations Bethany!
Best of Luck at NU/FS???
Dad, Mom, Dana, Jodi

DEAR LAURIE,

WE WISH YOU
ALL THE JOY, HAPPINESS AND LOVE IN YOUR LIFE THAT YOU HAVE BROUGHT TO OURS.

WE LOVE YOU,
MOM & DAD

Tammy,
Look What Happens
when you reach for the stars.

Congratulations

Love Mom and Dad
