Looking Back

As we enter our Senior year, the final chapter of high school has begun. It almost seems strange to think that in less than a year we will be leaving the place that is now most familiar to us.

Now as a Senior, I am anticipating graduation in June. Presently, I am frantically trying to sort through college applications. But, I find the time to look back at my freshmen year, recalling my first week as a high school student.

The first week of school I could not even figure out my locker combination. So for five long days, I carried my entire locker in my Eastpack bookbag. I also remember feeling like my classes were within a ten mile radius of one another. Of course they were not, and I soon learned to manage my time. I even learned to open that pesky locker.

Now that I have been going to East for over three years, opening my locker and racing down stairwells is a daily routine. Little things such as these become bigger problems for someone other than myself. It is funny how things change, isn't it?

KE Life

Spirit Week, the week leading up to Homecoming weekend, was full of great times and memories. Being at KE for two years I have seen the wackiest outfits on various days throughout the week. Blue and Gold Day has to be one of the days that the most school spirit is shown. The Pep Rally gets everyone together to debate upon which class is better (not proper behavior according to teachers!). Cheerleaders practice their routines for the upcoming game and pep rally. I still go to the game to cheer on our football team and show my school spirit even though the record for our football team is not great.

Unique Week

1. The Bulldog, Scott Frauenhofer, is full of energy at the Pep Rally.

2. Nick MacVie dressed in his Hawaiian clothes shows off his school spirit.

3. Nick Kusmierski, Andy Logie, Nicole Grasso, and Dan Saltino practice their routine for the Pep Rally.

4. Barb Collins gives Mr. Reuter a "friendly" kiss to make up for him getting a pie in the face.

1. The Varsity cheerleaders, preparing for action.

2. Mr. Sagurney gets pied at the pep rally.

3. Mr. Critelli awaits the pie coming at his face by Mike Farrell in fear .

H O M E C O M I N G

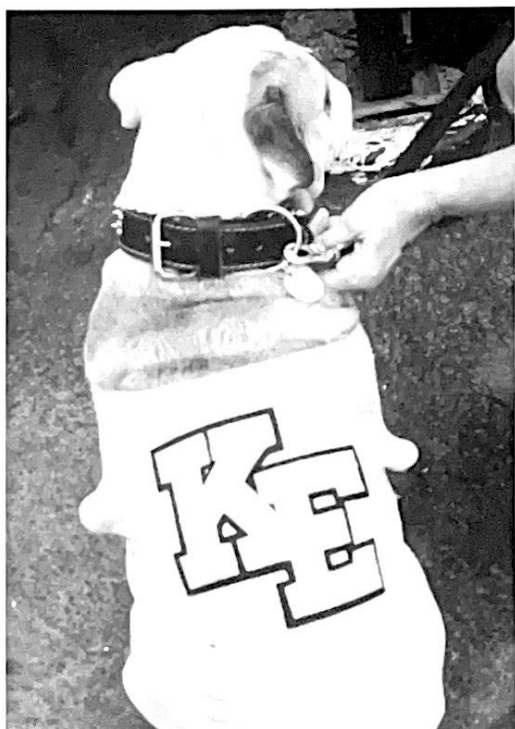

ADVENTURES

We're number one

1. The Homecoming court lines up at the annual Homecoming game.

2. Kenmore East JV football team gets ready during the homecoming game.

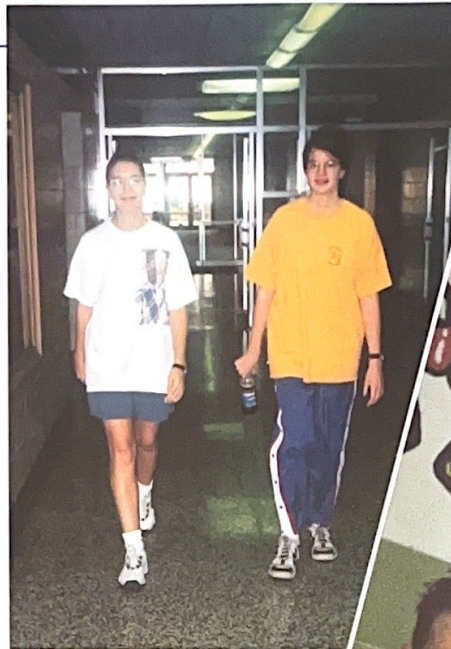

1. Kenmore East cheerleaders stop and smile for a group shot.

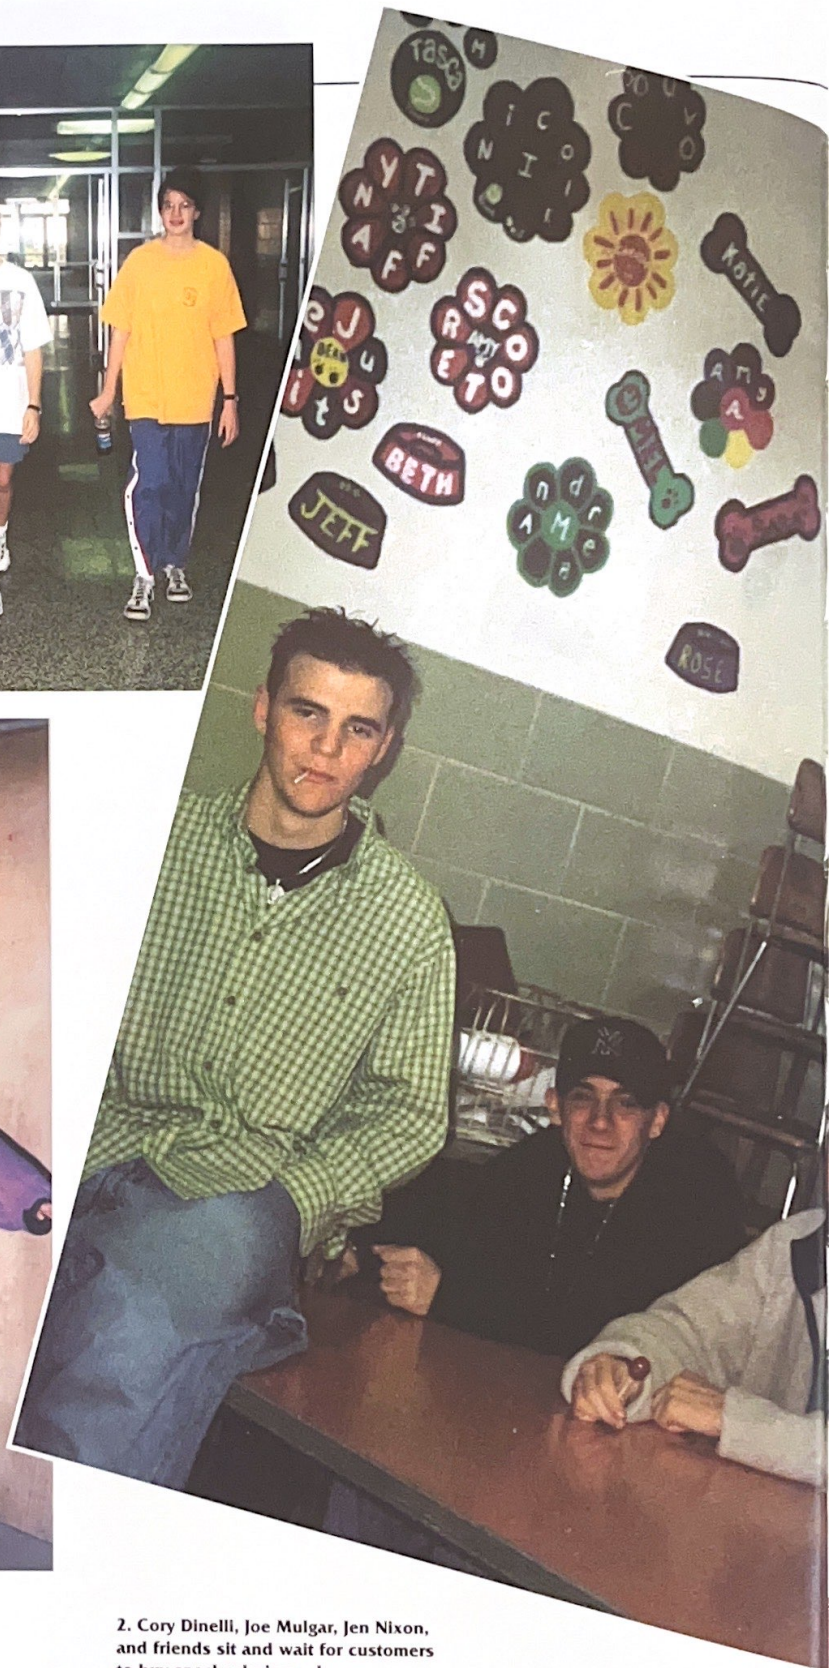

2. Showing school spirit: a proud owner brings their dog wearing the Ken East letters.

3. "Aloha, Kenmore East!"

1. Michelle Luby and Sarah Germaln power walk after school.

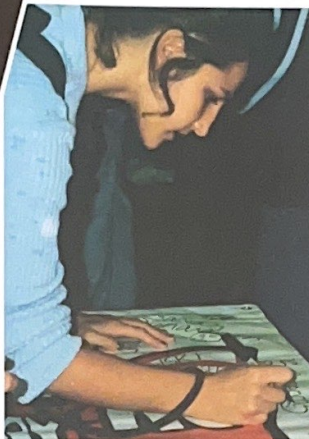

2. Jen Dygalski is getting ready to go home after having fun at a dance.

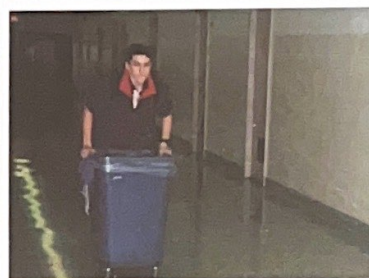

2. Cory Dinelli, Joe Mulgar, Jen Nixon, and friends sit and wait for customers to buy snacks during a dance.

1. Leah Sciabarrasi, signing the Red Ribbon Week banner that is to be hung up in the school.

2. Every Thursday members of Wilderness Club collect all the paper to be recycled.

When the Lights Go Out

As a student at KE, I know there are many interesting opportunities available. These opportunities include sports or one of the many clubs. I found my niche in Youth to Youth. Y2Y is a drug and alcohol awareness/prevention program for teens. It is attracting many enthusiastic members at KE.

As a member I attend many conferences. One of the conferences is the annual RAYS conference held at SUNY Brockport every summer. There are also many local conferences held at schools or banquet halls in this area. A member also has the opportunity to travel all over for conferences and activities. I have gone to Ohio for five days for the International Conference where people come as far as Jamaica. All of these conferences were loads of fun. I have met and made many new friends.

This is an international organization and many different types of people are involved. It is a great way to make new friends from other places. It also gives you the chance to show what you believe in. It helps provide awareness about the effects of drugs and alcohol.

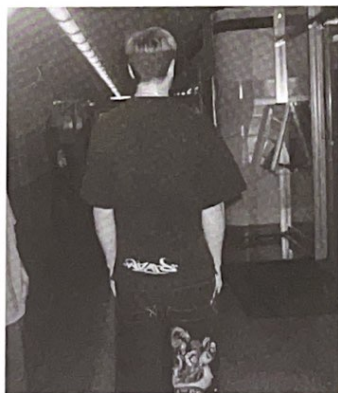

I have learned so much that cannot be learned in school. I have met so many new people in which I still keep in contact with. I have been able to befriend people I thought I would have nothing in common with but I do have something in common with them; an interest in Youth to Youth.

Sarah Richardson

3. Adam Wentlent and our new assistant principal, Mrs. Frey, at a dance

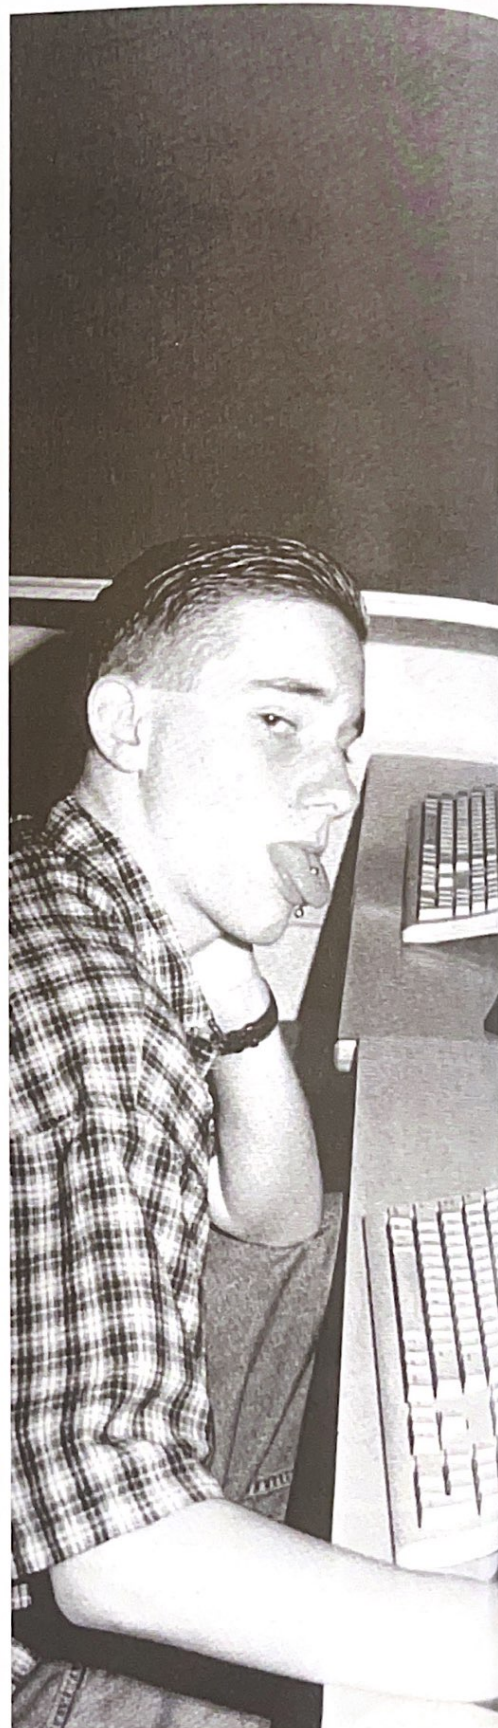

1. Making a statement: Gina Falzarono shows off her belly button ring.

3. Pain for fun: some do not see the logic, but Jenn Dunn has a tattoo.

4. Nick Michael shows his style by wearing JNCO jeans.

1. Finally the school property is being put to good use by student Andrew Lee Nicks, who is doing a soul grind.

D I V E R S E

S T Y L E S

There are many different styles that one can find in a high school. There tends to be a style for every group that is present in the school. As in the past, you have your typical people who wear their hair different from everyone else, who dress very differently from the so-called "normal people." They tend to stick out among the crowd. As you walk down the hall, you see a variety of styles and things that are "in."

Styles are not just about the way you dress but what goes along with the clothes you wear. Piercings can be found on many teens. The most common is the tongue, belly button, eyebrow, and nose.

Another way to show different styles is by the things one chooses to put in his or her locker. The common things found in lockers are: pictures of fellow classmates, stickers, magazine ads, mirrors, magnets and other personal items.

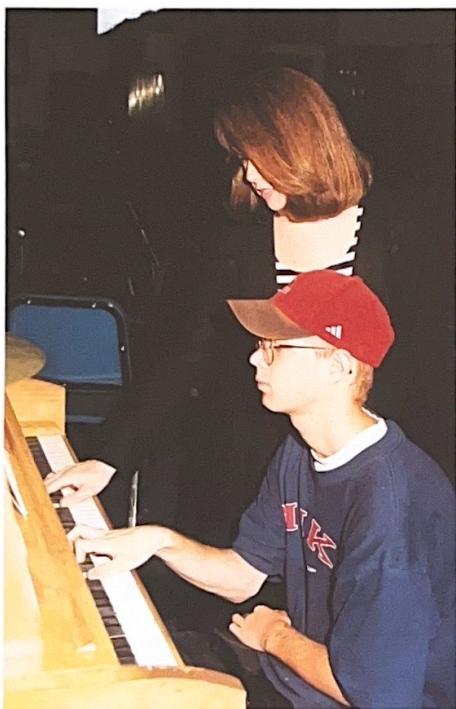

Being a skater or into the skater style you see people wearing chains that drag on the floor, JNCO jeans where one pant leg can fit three people, and shirts supporting alternative bands.

Where do you fit in?

1. Mr. Coates, showing freshmen how the guidance process works at KE.

2. Justin Nimmo and Mrs. Bowser sharing notes on the piano.

3. Mr.Koprevich shows his class how to properly work the machinery and still have fun in his classroom.

4. Yearbook editors show their enthusiasm.

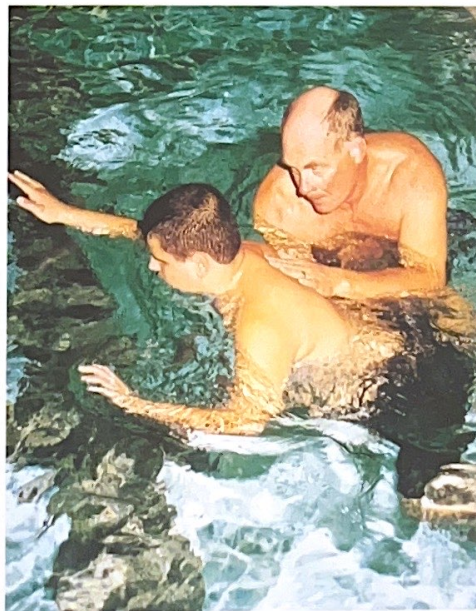

Learning the Ropes

During our first couple of months here at KE, we have experienced many transitions and changes, from the different class sizes to the new Regents requirements. The work has become more challenging and it takes a bit more effort than in middle school. The change from a class of 32 to a class of 320 is something no one can prepare you for. There are many advantages also. The amount of freedom you have at KE is incomparable to the amount in middle school. To your disadvantage, whether you pass or fail depends on you. I think the biggest change is the different people -- the types of people and the various personalities. The variety of people is definitely something to get used to. To sum it all up there is a lot to learn here at KE.

Megan MacVittie

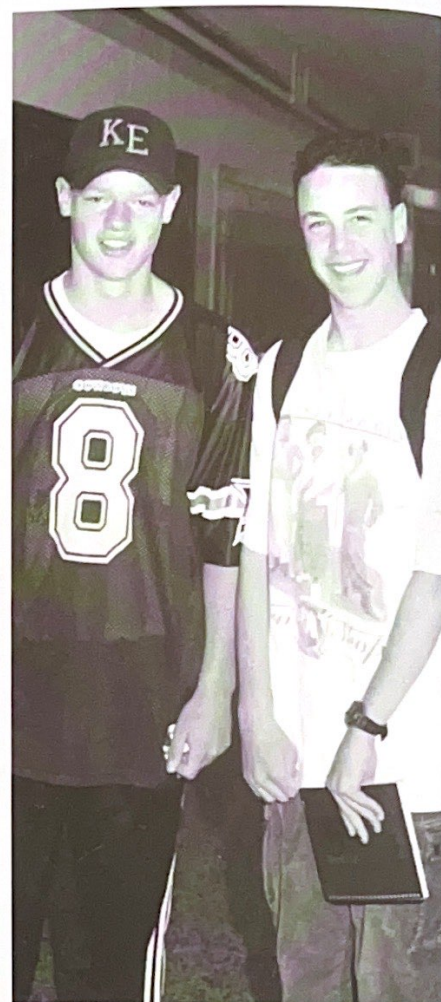

1. Mrs. Becker teaches her Math 1R class equations and formulas.

2. Mr. Mackeller teaches a student in the swimming pool.

Daily Life at KE

As a student here at Kenmore East, I feel that KE gives many valuable opportunities. KE provides us with a variety of clubs, sports, and activities. We are able to find students with common interests and become friends with them very easily. Friendship is very important in high school. Hopefully, when we have all moved on into adulthood we will look back on our time here at Kenmore East and smile!

1. Sam Robinson gives Kelsey Burch a helping hand loading soda.

2. Friends, John Tomsic and Jon Rossman Jr., stop while passing in between classes to take a picture.

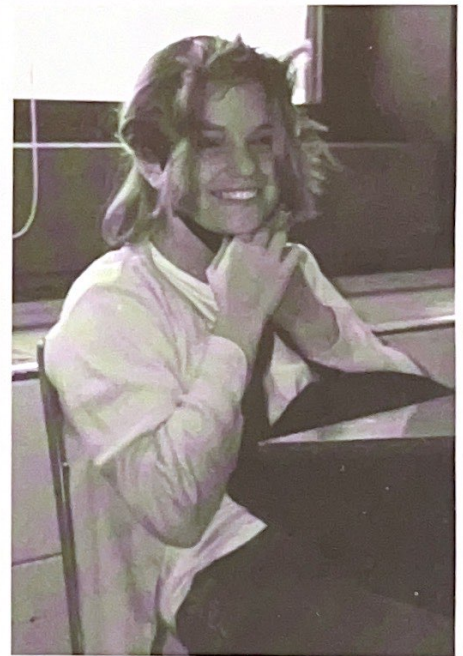

3. Melissa Armstrong and Alyson MacVittie stop for a friendly pose in front of the camera.

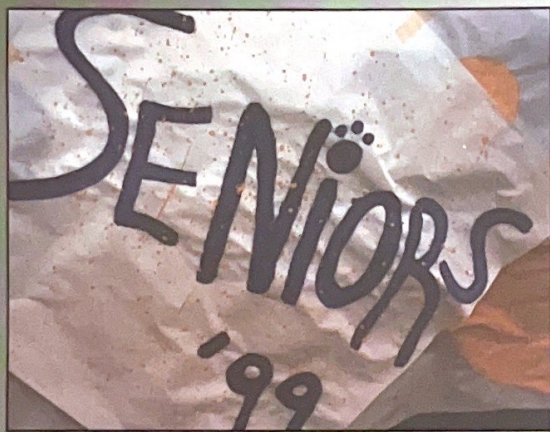

1. Angie Marasco and Kate Getman chatting in the hallway, a usual gathering for Kenmore East students.

2. Julie Kolb posing with a smile.

3. A group of guys can always be found playing hacky sack in the hall during lunch.

Kenmore East High School

Faculty and Staff

Teachers . . . they are as varied as crayons in a Crayola box. Some are bright, some neutral, some new, some seasoned. But for all their differences, they share the same goal: Their life's work is dedicated to imparting knowledge as they challenge their students to learn and grow. It is hard to believe that teachers really do have lives of their own, for they arrive at school when morning has not yet fully come awake, and they stay while the darkness of night descends on the playgrounds outside their windows . . . On any given school day, teachers open up for a lifetime the magnificent gift of reading; the ongoing pleasures of math; the adventures of geography and science; the legacy and lessons of history; the enthrallment of music, art, literature and language, the demands and accomplishments of physical education and athletic competition. Teachers are loved and scorned, respected and derided, remembered and forgotten. They are laughed with, laughed at and laughed about. They raise their own families and are devoted to someone else's children. They pay for the stickers that delight a little child's heart, slip warm mittens into the pocket of the student that has none, provide a classroom of security and safety when home is a battleground, tutor after school, guide the pregnant teen, cheer at games, counsel anxious hearts and fall asleep wondering why they feel so tired . . .
