Freshman Basketball

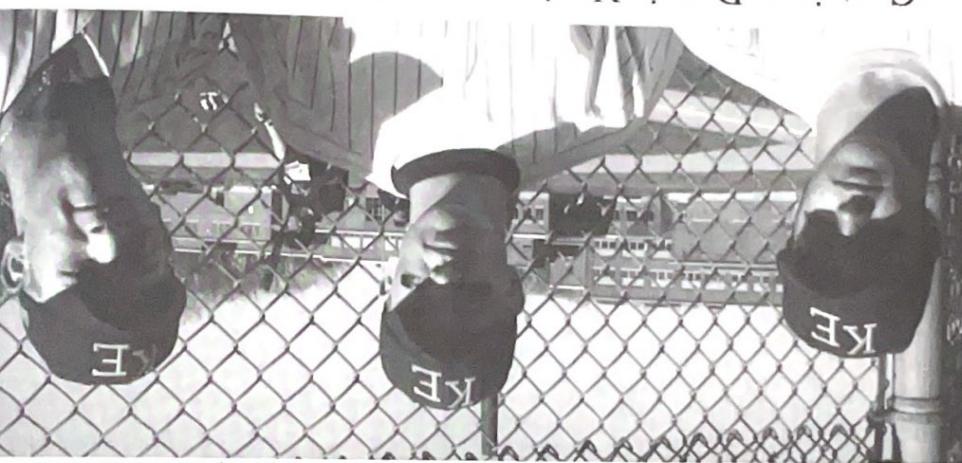

Players: Zach Cassese, Brian Davis, Ray Giaraffa, Adam Glaser, Moe LaCroix, Mike Saccomanno, Jordan Sibbet, Steve Stillman, Corey Tornquist, Zach Wagner, Walt Zehler.

The Bulldogs had a very successful season, posting an 8-8 record in the NFL and a 9-9 overall record in local competition. They also added a rare win in Florida, against St. Joseph's. Their eighth win was a dramatic one by beating Niagara Whartfield in their final at-bat, 7-6. Their eight wins in the NFL gave them a spot in the sectionals where they lost to Jamestown, 7-6. Their ninth win was a local competition. Dennis Nettima, Scott Lawton, Dave Gricco

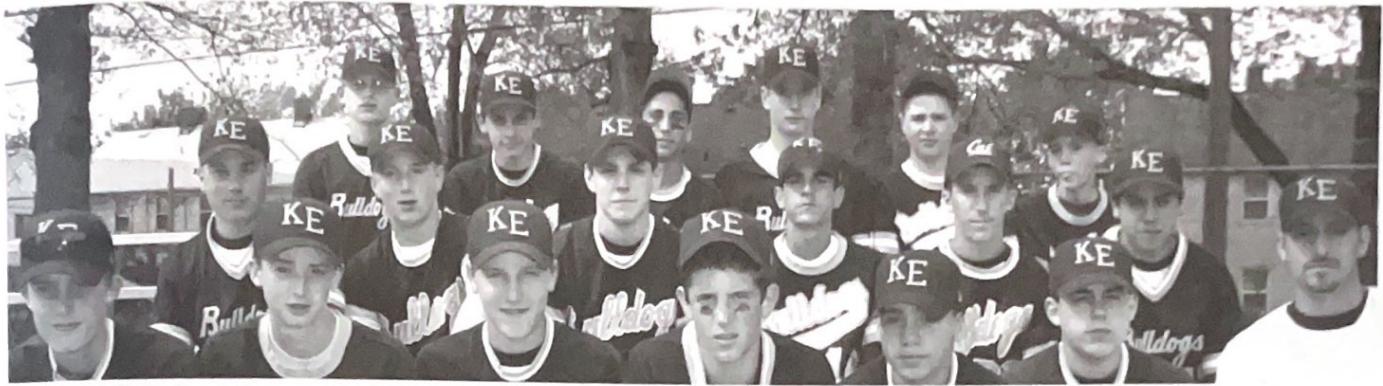

Top Row: Doug Whitehead, Bob Simpson, Michael Kosak, Andy Kielaszek
2nd Row: Brian Miller, Ryan Donnelly, Brandon Tediman, Matt Dzioomba, John Turski
Coach Les Simon, Darrell Mikulec, Brandon Tediman, Matt Dzioomba, Joe Bechtold

WAR

Seeing families and loved ones gone,
Then you ask yourself, where did we go wrong?
You feel the pain within your soul,
Watching those cowards complete their terrible goal.

Hearting the song "In the Arms of An Angel"
Watching the song "In the Arms of An Angel".
Seeing is all so very fatal.

So many tears, show all my fears.
As a tear slides down my cheek,

This terrorism makes me feel too weak.

Seeing the pain in the victims' eyes,

Wondering who are the cruel and inhuman guys.

The anguish that people are feeling,
Our freedom that these terrorists are stealing!

So many lives gone in a Flash.
Seeing the devil's face within the smoke,

Surely, this is not a joke!

Seeing the Twin Towers collapse,

Watching the television, you see a relapse.

Flags showing red, white, and blue
People asking "Can this all be true?".

Seeing fatality in the streets,
Watching people fight for our nation.

The start of war is definitely a sad occasion.

Listening to people's prayers,
Knowing that this destruction is just not fair.

Wondering why people do such terrible things,

All the people that died in the terror now have their wings.

Sigils of love, harmony, peace and hope.

Wondering how the families of victims cope.

Watching everyone work as one,

Hopfully this terrorism will soon be done!

This feels like a big nightmare,

Wishing America was more aware.

Heating the last words of loved ones on their cell phones,

Imagining hearing all those painful moans.

Watching the flicker in the candlelight,

Man and women showing their heroic acts.

People wanting to know all the true facts.

Wishing all of this wasn't true,

September 11, 2001 is definitely a day to remember.

God Bless America

Lynda Gone South

Oh yeah, she's gone. She went down south with a son, some dreams, and a husband who kicks dogs.

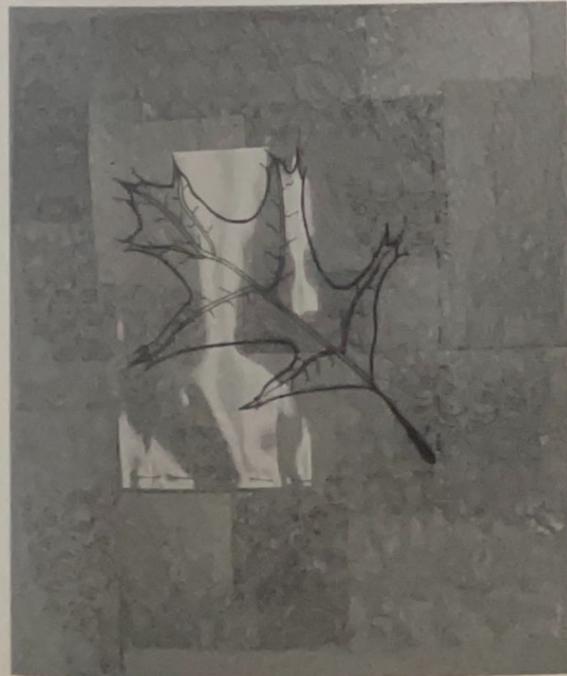

Oh yeah, she's gone. She went down south and had another little baby; he's gonna be a hick, they all said.

Oh yeah, she's gone. She was an English major. Then she went down south. No more elegant speeches or affluent writing. NO more long, wonderfully wordy letter. She talks like them now. She say's thing like yep's and ya'all. All that heat and whining, and dog kicking has added up. She went south and now thinks like them too.

Oh yeah, she who wrote gracefully as a ballerina, as freely as a stream, is gone. She went down south, and never came back the same.

Even from the start,
For we were with you always,
Keep us in your heart,
For all of you who fade away,
From all your inner pain
But none can ease your aching heart,
And never see again,
For those are the ones you will miss,
Each and every day,
But never forget those who care,
Some move on, some just stay
Stop the end of day,
Yearning, burning, friends desire,
As friend slip away
Tears come to our watered eyes
The End

The Lost Dream
By: Vanessa L. Gerry

Lost and never came back
Beaten with ruthless reality
My dream from my youth
Only made more and more my history
Anything I was going to be
Could never be
Only a petty dream
That molded the future
An endless exhaustion
Of fear and determination
Fear of never reaching my potential
Determination so that I will never die with regret
For I will only fight to die
My dream an infinite dance
Upon the stairs of chance
The only star upon the sky
Couldn't help become
Sadness with my truth
The only truth upon my eyes
Words couldn't express what I feel tonight
Nothing to do but plan my future

Pixie Stix: The Kiddy Crack

By: Kevin O'Keefe

Sugar, Pure Sugar. What more could a child want? In the age of new candies every week and sugar-coated chocolate cereal, what could be more ingenious than flavored sugar? In all ways it's like the kiddy crack!

Kids are always rushing out to get more of this miracle powder. When you're littler there's no greater rush than pure sugar. After about five, you have the stamina of a gazelle. Your mind goes on the whack after ten. You're like some insane wild animal with a burning behind, running and screaming like a maniac. But you must have MORE! You've got to top the kid who can down a whole tube at once! But they're gone so quick! They're just so little. Before you know it, you've had thirteen to fifteen and can speak at 150wpm.

Then they came out with the big sticks. Of course a kid will down it in record time to fiesta! Bouncing off all walls screaming, "WHEE! SPAP! PINK! DOG BISCUITS!" and other such absurdities. It's ten minutes of hell for the unlucky parents when their kid is "high" on pixie sticks. Ever try to tame a squirrel?

Next thing you know, there will be pixie stick dealers. They'll hang out at the playground. You'll hear shouts of, "I gottcha blue! Your red! Green! Hey, I'll give you TWO STICS of this stuff for your pudding!" You'll know who they are. They'll have all the "good" light-up power ranger shoes and holographic Jurassic Park book bags. They'll spot the "cool" pokemon jackets. And they'll always be jacked up up on Pixie Stixs. I tell you, they're coming.

Parents, how can you tell if YOUR kid is on the stick? Check out his or her room for wrappings. If they're overly excited about their oatmeal: dead giveaway. And MOST of all: check for colored tongues. Take it from someone with a little sister on the stick: there's nothing worse then a hyper little kid!

I will say one thing. If you ever have kids, keep them away from pixie sticks. If you buy them, you will forever regret doing so. But if you do decide to ignore my advice and buy it, get orange or green. They're the best ones!
