Members of the yearbook staff, thank you for all your hard work on this year's Spectrum. As with any group activity, a yearbook class always has its small group of go-getters, staff members who jump right into work — without even being asked — and ask for more when they are done. The following students were largely self-directed and responsible:

Tiffany If anyone else has zoned out and fallen asleep in front of the yearbook web site as much as I have this year, it's you. There's something therapeutic about commiserating with someone else when a deadline is looming, and I want to thank you for everything you did this year to keep the production of this book going. It's hard to juggle academics, extracurriculars, a social life, two cameras, several memory cards, and a few juice boxes, but you managed. Thank you for everything. The yearbook is definitely TBT!

Jill Annis Thank you for being the cynical voice of reason when we needed it. If anyone could shine the harsh light of reality on the goings-on of eighth period, it was you. Also, thank you for being one of the first members of AP Yearbook. While sixth period was not always the most productive time in the world, it was always hilarious. Exactly.

Megan Hertel The sports section would never have happened without your attention to detail, to-do lists, organization, and focus. Let's face it: without you constantly checking in, I probably would have gotten distracted and forgotten about the sports section — or the yearbook — entirely. Thank you!

Megan Crawford It has been amazing having you on staff this year. Your commitment to after-school yearbook cram sessions and tedious, last-minute work has made a huge difference this year. The fact that you are such a charismatic, polite, and reasonable person often calmed my nervous energy when I knew we had some seemingly impossible tasks to accomplish.

Lisa While we didn't always agree, thank you for biting your tongue on occasion to get many great pictures for the senior poll and for helping with the dividers.

Caleb Thank you for being the tech wizard and for getting tricky visuals accomplished calmly and quickly. It would have taken me hours to accomplish what you managed in a few minutes. I hope your obvious talent and your ability to succeed despite crippling procrastination take you far!

Marissa Thank you for all the hard work on the map. I know it is hard to produce something that meets everyone's expectations. Someone will surely complain that you missed something or didn't do it just right. I think there is a lot to be said for the fact that no matter what their personal ideas about the map were, everyone who saw your drawings oohed and aahed. While the map went through many phases, deletions, and replacements, thank you for keeping up with the pace.

Sophomores, maybe next year! Juniors, I hope you learned something this year that can make next year even better. Seniors, I hope this yearbook is a lasting memento of your best year at East.

Kate and Nate, all my love. No story is better than ours.
